BIO:

I have a doctorate in psychopathology. I am an associated researcher at CERPPS and a temporary teacher at the University of La Réunion (French Island in the Indian Ocean). Passionate about addictive behavior, I am particularly interested in technological addictions that currently affect a large part of the population. Other topics related to psychopathology also raised my interests, such as personality disorders and defense mechanisms. Besides, I am a clinical psychologist, actually working with teenagers and young adults in a big child protection company.
